Police Intelligence.

An Assault with a Pistol on an Officer.—A well known personage named John R. Ling, on Wednesday evening, entered the public house kept by Charley Abel. in Broadway, and there in the bar room, offered to fight any one present willing to take up the bet. he commenced an attack on several, with a view of drawing them into a conflict with him. Police officer S. J. Smith, who happened accidentally to be present, was next attacked. Ling then took off his cost, and called to a friend who was with him to go for his "tools," and, in a short time, this friend returned with a cost on his arm, from the pocket of which a six barrel revolver was taken by Ling who forthwith approached Mr. Smith, and presented the same within three or four inches of his head. Mr. Smith, believing the pistol to have been loaded, knocked the muzzle up with one hand, and grappled Ling by the threat with the other. They clinched together, and Smith succeeded in throwing his adversary. Ald was then precured from the Fourteenth ward police, an Mr. Ling was conveyed to the Police Court, before Justice Welsh, who took the affidavits of the witnesses, setting forth the above facts, and the magistrate required the detendant to be examined on the charge of an assault with intent to kill. In this examination Mr. Ling stated as follows:—"I know nothing about the charge against me, it is all a dream to me, I have always been on the most friendly terms with Smith, and I am at this moment, also with Mr. Abel, I am on most friendly terms with him, I never had any ill feeling against atthe of them." The magistrate, on the affidavit presented, held Mr. Ling was discharged from custors.—Bitting off an Eur.—On Wednesday night about In circus an alternation to ke laway a hone in Boose.

City Politics.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS. The delegates elected for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Comptroller, Street Commissioner, Commissioner, sioner of Repairs and Supplies. City Inspector and Governor of Almshouse, met last evening at Tammany Hall. The whole of the evening was occupied in admitting delegates from the disputed wards. Those who came with the Inspector's certificate on the Syracuse platform of the 5th August were after some discussion, admitted as the legal candidates. The last ward was only admitted at 1 O'clock this morning. Richard Norris, of the Tenth ward, was then chosen the permanent chairman, and the convention adjourned until Thursday next.

MEETING OF GERMAN DEMOCRATS.

Last night a meeting of German citizens, for the the Presidency and Vice Presidency, was held at Mager's Hall, Elizabeth street. The meeting was small, but much enthusiasm pervaded it. Mr. Lux was called to the chair, and the meeting was addressed by several German gentlemen, advising their German brethren as to their duties and responsibilities as citizens. At the con-clusion, resolutions were passed, promising support to the democratic nominations, and condemning the corruption and violence exhibited at the primary elections, after which the meeting dispersed.

The Free Academy-Inaugural Addresses. The five professors recently appointed in this institution delivered their inaugural addresses, yesterday evening, in the grand lecture hall of the Academy. The ex ercises commenced at half-past seven o'clock, and at thi time there were between three and four hundred ladies and gentlemen present, constituting a most elegant and fashionable audience. Upon the raised platform, at the end of the hall, we noticed the Hon. Judge Campbell, Doctor Peat, President of the Institution for the Den and Dumb; Doctor Webster, President of the Academy; Ogden Hoffman, Esq., Professor Davies, Dr. Gibbs, Professors Doremus, Benedict, Barton, Nichols, Anthon with a number of other gentlemen, distinguished in science and literature

The chair was taken by Professor E. C. Benedict.

The Chairman said:—Clizens, iadies, and gentlemen, the Free Academy has been now established for more than three years, during this time it has grown much in popular favor, as affording an extended range of education of the control of the control

yeur attention to the crude remarks of an unpractised speaker

After the retirement of Mr. Anthon, Professor Barron delivered an able lecture upon "English Language and Literature," analyzing the various causes—social civil, political, and religious—which have tended to render it so copious, expressive, and diffuse.

He was unceeded by Prefessor Doremus upon "Natural History and Physiology," in a very gifted lecture.

The very large meeting then separated, highly pleased with the exhibition of learning and eloquence.

New Stramship Line to Charleston.—We are gratified to be able to announce the initiatory step towards the re-establishment of steamship communication between Philadelphia and Charleston. The steamship Granite State, built at this port within the year, and first called The Reindeer, has been placed in the hands of Jehn L. Linton, Eq., to run temporarily in the line, and will sail hence, on her first trip, on Saturday next, the 11th instant. She is a well built and commodious steamer, and in speed is not surpassed, if equalled by any other propeller. Her sailing days will be the same as those of the State of Georgia, for Savannah, but on the alternate weeks, so that we shall have a steamer every week for the South. A company is now in course of organization, with most encouraging prospects, for the establishment of a permanent line, and it is expected that two steamers of the best construction for speed, safety, and accommodation, will be ready for service early next spring — Phil. Bulletin, Sept. 8.

The Soutag Serenade.

Last evening, the New York Musical Mutual Protection Association assembled at Niblo's, at eleven o'clock, preparatory to their proceeding to the Union Hotel, to give a testimony of their respect to the genius of Sontag, whose musical fame, as a vocalist of the first rank, and possessing a soprano voice only equalled in the Old and New World by Grisi, is well known to the fashionable portion of our citizens, who visit the leading opera-houses of the European continent. At half-past eleven the society proceeded up Broadway to the Union Hotel, where several members of the Edgine Company 21, and the Hose Companies 6, 9, and 27, were assembled, bearing torch lights in their hands. The band having arranged their stands, played two national airs, which were suc cceded by the overture to "Nabuco," the performance of which elicited enthusiastic cheers. The next piece was the admired drinking song in "Lucrezia Borgia." which of the bystanders. Its execution was so brilliant, all present were charmed with the dulcet strains of the band, as they broke in the silence of night upon their ears with a swell of melody which can only be surpassed by the sweet and scientific warblings of the Queen of Soprano soug, on the first night of her professional efforts in the land of freedom. The next gem was a grand march, composed by Signor Ardite, called the "Sonvocalist appeared on the balcony and bowed her acknow. ledgments. The seronade being concluded, three cheers were given for Madame Sentag, and the musical society and firemen formed into line, and proceeded down Broadway, to the inspiriting music of "The Serious Family halted, and we left them playing the overture to "Nabuco," we presume as a compliment to Alboni. We are nformed that the American Musical Fund Society, assisted by the Liederkranz, will give their grand serenade on Mouday evening next, which promises to be a bril-

DEBUT OF THE BATEMAN CHILDREN.-The youthful prodigies, Ellen and Kate Bateman, who attracted so much attention by their recent performances in England, made their debut here last night, in the New York

Theatre, late Astor Place Opera House. From the sensation created by their brilliant success in Europe, and the prestige which they brought with them, much curiosity has been excited in the theatrical circles of this city. as to the real merits of the young artistes. But yet, to our surprise, the house last evening was not more than half full. We witnessed the performance of the children with much delight, but yet cannot endorse the unlimited amount of puffery lavished on them by the English press, and re-published to some extent here. Our conceptions of them are, that in some respects they have been much over-rated, and thereby injured by an undiscriminating flattery, while in others they stand forward as artistes entitled, even without reservation on account of youth, to the foremost rank. Their appearance last night was in the last act of "Richard the Third," which was sadly mutilated for the purpose. Their performance commenced with the second scene of that act, where Richmond addresses his followers with "Thus far into the bowels of the land have we marched on without impediment." The delivery of this address by Kate Bateman was hurried, and lacked force and conception. The impression made at first was rather unfavorable, but there was some improvement in the concluding portion of the scene. Ellen created a better impression as Richard. and received much applause. The re appearance of Richmond (Kate), and the interview with Lord Stanley was little seter had no real conception of the part she played; but merely performed it as trained to do, without any played by Ellen, and when the ghosts vanish, and the murderous monarch starts from his perturbed slumber. raving for a horse, was forcibly and admirably represented, and elicited much applause. The encounter between Richard and Richmond was also well acted, and the fencing of the children was excellent. But were their reputation to rest on their brilliant one. Perhaps two or three out of every dozen children of their age, instructed in recitation, could have performed their parts equally well. We do not mean, by this remark, to depreciate the talents of the children, but the simple reason of their failure to create their intellectual capacity. It was too much of a childish caricature of Shakspeare's great characters; and though t might amuse, it could, by no means, form any grounds for the extravagant praises bestowed on the children. So much for the Bateman Children in "Richard the Third," though, perhaps, in concluding a notice of it, it might not be amiss in the critic to suggest that henceforth this tragedy, and all such dramatic pieces beyond the powers Our remarks on the next piece, however, are of a very

of the children, be expunged from the repertoire. different and more pleasant tenor, simply because the young artistes had only to sustain their own characters as children. It was the amusing petite comedy of "The Young Couple," in which the two children, as Charle, and Henrietta, fall in love in imitation of their seniors and in mock solemnity are joined as man and wife Nothing could be more droil than the acting of the young couple, under the impression that they were really Monsieur and Madame de Bionville. The impression which Kate failed to produce as Richmond, she was eminently successful in producing, as the fashionable baby wife, and Ellen, as Charley, the responsible young husband, was exceedingly humorous. Here they were both in their element full of fun mischief and drollery, tinctured nevertheless, with a most dignified idea of their vast importance in the social scale, as well as in their matrimonial relations. In speaking of their acting in this plece, we do not desire to do so in a relative sense, by saying that it was wonderful in children of their age. We would rather say, that as a piece of comic acting, we never saw it surpassed by artistes of any age, and we need hardly add, that it amused the audience to the last degree. The young couple were rapturously applauded, and received showers of bouquets. At the close of both pieces, the children were cailed before the curtain, and on the latter occasion little Charley, (Miss Ellen.) came forward and said. "Ladies and gentlemen, we are very glad to mest you at home again." If the Bateman Children are confined to this and similar pieces, suited to their capacity, they will undoubtedly draw immense houses, and if we could except the piece of Riehard, we might then say, that their debut was eminently successful. and in mock solemnity are joined as man and wife

The Sunday Closing Movement—The Case of Miles Wood against the City of Brooklyn.—The against of the injunction order, issued by Judge Strong, restraining the Corporation of Brooklyn from enforcing the ordinance for the prevention of Sunday traffic, was heard yesterday in the Supreme Court, special term, in the above case. N. F. Waring, Esq., opened on behalf of the plaintiff, and in an argument of considerable length, assumed the ground that the ordinance conflicted with the laws and constitution of the State, and was therefore invalid, and could not be enforced. The rovised statutes contained provisions, regulating and prohibiting, under certain circumstances, the sale of wares or merchandise of any description on Sunday, and prescribed a penalty of $2.50 for each violation, and this ordinance of the Common Council was merely a repetition of that part of the revised statutes, and prescribed an additional and larger penalty for the same offence. He died several eminent authorities in support of this view of the case.

J. M. Van Cott, Esq., on the part of the city, likewise produced authorities and among others, (from Howard's Reports), the case of Cooley against the Board of Warden of the port of Philadelphia, which was an action to compel the payment of pilot fees, by authority of a State law of Pennsylvania. The ground of defence in the case was, that that State law was rendered inoperative by the laws of Congress, that body having regulated the same subject, and yet the Court held that the law was a constitutional regulation of commerce, and so decided. The city ordinance, so far from being unconstitutional, was in accordance with the general provisions of the revised statutes having reference to the same subject. Counsel further argued, that the case was not one for an injunction, as the partice had a proper remedy by the ordinary process of law, and that what they asked for was to restrain police officers from arresting parties for violating a law which they allege is unconstit prison, without an opportunity of procuring ball, as fast been the case with those against whom the oral same hard been already enforced. At the conclusion of the STU ment Judge Strong announced that he would delive a six decision on the opening of the Circuit Court, particularly week.

Railroad Accidents.—An accident of a most alarming aspect, occurred at 2 o'clock on Wednesday, upon the New Haven Railroad, near Bridgeport. It appears that before the express train from Boston due in this city at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Bud reached the Housatonic Bridge, five miles above Bridgeport, the man in charge of the switch, at that place, had gone to dinner, and neglected to arrange the switch. In consequence of this, the engine got off the rail and butting against the side of the bridge knocked it down. The engine was then precipitated from a height of fifteen feet, into the water and dragged two baggage cars with it. Most fortunately the connecting link between the baggage and passenger cars was severed, either by breaking or otherwise, or else tha most frightful consequences must have ensued. The engineer and a fireman saved their lives by jumping off but sustained some bad bruises. No other person injured. A man in the employ of the Harlem River Raitroad Company, was driving an empty car, drawn by four horses, on Wednesday evening, to the depot in Forty-second street. As he was passing through the tunned above thirty second street a locemotive came up in the rear, and the driver not perceiving the car, in consequence of a dense smoke which filled the tunnel from an express train which had just come up, ran the engine against it. The car was pitched over the shaft and killed the two wheel horses immediately, injuring the leaders at the same time. The car was smashed to pieces, and two hours were spent in removing the fragments from the track in order to afford a safe passage to the next train.

Figures Visit.—We noticed, in our paper of yester-and two hours were spent in removing the fragments from the track, in order to afford a safe passage to the next train.

Firemes's Visit.—We noticed, in our paper of yesterday, the departure of Mazeppa Engine Company No. 48, on Wednesday evening, on a visit to their brother firemen in Albany. We learned, yesterday, that they arrived safe by the steamer Rip Van Winkle, and were received at landing by a committee from the Daniel D. Tompelas Company No. 8, whose special guests they are to be during their stay. They were escorted to the City Hall by No. 8, at nine o'clock, when Mayor Perry welcomed them to Albany. They afterwards marched through the priscipal streets and, upon dismiss al, the members of No. 2 individually amused them until evening. They were to be bonored by a grand torchlight procession by the Fire Department last night. They visit Schenectady, in company of No. 8, this day, and it is expected that No. 4, of that city, will receive them with all the honors. They will sup this evening at the Scantax, in Albany, and leave for New York and duty to-morrow merning. We trust they will arrive safe.

THE WEATHER.—The morning sun of yesterday cleared away a heavy fog which hung over the city at an early hour and svery intensely hot day succeeded its dispersion. The thermometer at the Herald Building ranged as follows:—At nown, 83½ degrees; at 3 P. M. 82½; at 5 P. M. 82. At ten at night, the mist is settling upon the rivers, and a peculiarly mild and moist air prevails. There is appearance of a continuance of heat.

Night Cars or Eightm Avenue Ralmon.—The directors of this road commenced last night and will coatinue to run a car every half hour during the night from either end of the line. The cars will run from Fifty first street every half hour in each night, commencing at half past ten and continue on the road until six o'clock in the morning. A car will leave foot of Chambers street at the same hour, and continue also during the night. This will afford great public accommodation.

Lam Expenses.—No Light

became of the sum already expended?

VIGLEST ASSAULT—A colored man, named Joseph Curtis, was wantonly attacked, on Wednesday night, at the colber of Leonard and Orange streets, by some person or persons, who inflicted a severs wound upon him with a knife or some sharp instrument. The wound extended laterally, from his shoulder blade to his walst, and measured over rixteen inches in length. He was carried to the Sixth ward station house in a senseless condition, where he was uttended to by Dr. Simmons. The officers afterwards conveyed him home.

ACCIDENT.—A boy, named Edward Faulkener, was accidentally thrown from a wagon in Broadway on Wednesday afternoon, and very seriously injured by the fall. He was taken up by an officer of the Eighth ward, who immediately precured medical aid. He was afterwards taken home by officer Werk.

Court of General Sessions.

Before Judge Beebe and Aldermen Moore and Haley Styr. 9.—Bold Robbery at a Store.—Model Charge by Judge Beebe.—John Williams and Geo. Perry, two young men, were indicted for stealing a box containing fifty rings of the aggregate value of upwards of $100 from the jewelry store of Mr. Wigan, in Canal street, on the 28th August.

Mr. Wigan's sister proved that, on the above day, she being in charge of the store, the prisoners both came to look at the rings; While she was showing them. Wis-being in charge of the store, the prisoners both came to look at the rings. While she was showing them, Williams spatched the box from her, and ran out, followed by Perry. The rings produced were part of the stolen, property. The prisoners escaped on that occasion, but Officer Martin, of the Sixth ward, proved that a day or two afterwards, he arrested Perry, who had in his possession the fourteen rings produced, and, subsequently, Williams was apprehended.

Judge Beebe addressed the jury in a style which might well serve as a model for certain of our Congressmen and others. He said:—"Gentlemen of the jury—The prisoners are indicted for grand Isrceny. It seems clearly made out. The case is with you." They thought so to and, without leaving their seats, pronounced a verdict of guilty.

out. The case is with you." They thought so to and, without leaving their seats, pronounced a verdict of guilty.

Perry, who is a determined looking "b'hoy," andaciously asserted, in reply to the usual question, that he bought the rings, and had never been charged with a theft before, which latter assertion is also untrue. The court raid the case was too clear to admit of any doubt; and it was a bold robbery, amounting almost to one in the first degree. The sentence was that Perry be confined in the State prison for two years and nine months, and Williams for three years. On sentence being pronounced, Perry said:—"There's one thing I've to tell the Court. This man (pointing to Williams) is altogether innocent. I never saw him till after he was arrested. The man that was with me is now on the island sent up for six months."

Mr Blunt.—I thought you bought the rings just now! Prisoner, with great nonchalance.—Oh, well! The sentence is passed now. (Laughter.)

They were then removed from the bar.

Robbert by a Fellow Lodger.—James Smith was charged with robbing his fellow-lodger. John Torrence, a carrier of the Haratto, of $50 from the latter's truck, which was locked and in their sleeping room at 115 Wooster street, on the 12th of August. The robbery was deciected by means of a shinplaster for 12j. cents, or one real, which the prosecutor had had a long time in his possession, and was with the other moneye. This was found on the prisener when treested by Officer Freeman Payne, of the Eighth ward police. The jury, without leaving their seats, found the prisoner gunty, and he was sentenced to the State Prison for two years.

Impudent Alliempla Robbery—Hard to be Pleased—Jas.

McGarry, apparently a young labering man, was convicted of an attempt at grand larreny. He, with another not in custody, were detected by officer William Bow-yer of the Eleventh ward, endeavoring to remove a composition bilge pump from Mr Geo. Laws' private yard, at the foot of Eighth street, and had already got off fourteen nuts.

Mr Goss in Mr. Law's employ, proved that the metal was worth fifty dollars, and the pump entire worth two hundred.

The Court, to give the prisoner a chance of reformation, as he had been convicted of an attempt only, sentenced him to six months imprisonment in the penitemitary, when the prisoner said in a blubbering manner—"They hadn't ought to send me for that?"

Judge Beebe—"Well, if you don't like that, we can end you to the States prison." (Laughter.)

The prisoner appearing awake to his real position, by this suggestion, suddenly dried his tears, and retired, at the beck of the attendant officer.

By Pleaded Guity—A Singular Cass.—Hugh Gillmore, a man of hitherto good character, (as witnesses were in attendance to prove, and, amongst them, he said he would call the prosecutor himself.) pleaded guilty to stealing a watch, chain, and key, valued at $50 He said he would throw himself on the mercy of the Court. He had two small children and their mother was dead. He could not at all account for the impulse which led him to commit the theft. The devil had tempted him, he supposed, and he had better have been dead. It is still more extraordinary, that he actually sold the watch, &c., for the paltry sum of two dollars. The Court, with some appropriate remarks, sentenced him to the lowest term of imprisonment, namely, two years.

Adjourned till to morrow morning, (Friday.)
